

To: R8EISC[R8EISC@epa.gov]
From: M. Sherry Bowman
Sent: Wed 8/12/2015 7:21:23 PM
Subject: Superfund Designation

Is it usual that a private or public company can pursue the EPA to NOT categorize a polluted site as a superfund site? How is it that Silverton's public was able to stall this designation? I've read a lot of criticism about how the EPA is handling the Gold King disaster, but isn't there black and white data that proves Superfund status is mandated? If not, why? The EPA should not be bullied by companies, politicians or the public. You have a job to do, it's not easy. Just do it! How can I help?

Kind regards,
M. Sherry Bowman

Personal Email/Ex. 6

Sent from my Verizon Wireless 4G LTE smartphone